

Promised park becoming a storage yard

PLEASANTON — Implications of poor staff communication and alleged violations of three stop work orders banning construction were aired at the planning commission meeting Wednesday night.

A delegation of Stonedale Drive residents complained that Stoneson Corporation is building a recreational vehicle storage yard at the end of their street.

Not only were they told by their realtors that a grassy park would occupy that lot, but the city also seemed to have had its signals crossed back in the days when the recreational vehicle storage yard was being planned as part of the Stonedale Drive project.

City Planning Director Robert Harris said that city records are inconsistent on the placement of the recreational vehicle yard. The preponderance of evidence seems to put the yard right where it is being built now, said Harris.

The city issued a stop work order on the second day of construction of the yard because of neighbors complaints that no building permit was posted on the site, said Barbara Frye.

Work continued despite two more stop work orders, neighbors claimed. Dennis Bloching said that the developer had put $14,000 in the project. He felt that the developer would use that investment and he thought the work is half-finished as reasons for finishing the job. Commissioner Howard Garrigan said those factors would have no bearing on the commission's decision.

The situation is complicated, said Garrigan. There is a need for the developer and the residents to communicate, there was a past communication problem (the tract maps) on the city staff's part, and there also needs to be input from residents of the Stonedale townhouses, for whom the storage yard is being built.

One townhouse resident vented his feelings about the residents of the single family homes on Stonedale Drive. He suggested they have one of the ugliest streets in Pleasanton and many of them could profit by parking their own alleged eyesores in a recreation vehicle storage yard.

The matter was further complicated by Stoneson Corporation's application, also heard Wednesday night, to rezone 22 acres of townhouse lands to single family residences. If the land is rezoned, it would mean only 25 percent of the total proposed condominiums would be developed. This could have an effect on the recreation vehicle storage yard.

The storage yard is a "common area" supported by funds from the homeowners association which every condominium dweller must join. If there will be fewer total association members in the future, dues per family will be higher and it could mean a cutback in common area facilities. Planning commissioners want this possibility explored when a troubleshooting committee is formed on the problem.

Garrigan suggested the following membership for the committee: a planning commissioner, a planning staffer, and representatives of the developer, the condominiums and the Stonedale Drive residents.

Stoneson's request to rezone the 22 acres to single family homes was rejected on a tie vote of the commission. Garrigan and Bob Butler voted for the rezoning. Walt Wood and David Shepherd voted against. Commissioner Gregg Doherty was absent.

The tie vote meant rejection of the proposal, but the developer has 15 days to appeal the decision to the city council. — by Ron McNicol

Sewer plant bill reaches court

DUBLIN — A multi-million dollar lawsuit initiated by Valley Community Services District seeking relief from a debt still owed to Volk - McLain on their original investment in the VCSD treatment plant is now under submission in Alameda County Superior Court.

Volk - McLain Communities, Inc. built the VCSD treatment plant.

A 1961 agreement between VCSD and Volk - McLain called for the treatment plant to be financed by assessment charges on those who would benefit directly from using the plant.

But the agreement was renegotiated in 1965. The new agreement added a five per cent interest charge to the reimbursement sum owed Volk - McLain.

VCSD sewage revenues, it stipulated, would be placed in a Volk - McLain reimbursement fund, limiting its use to their reimbursement except in cases of major traumatic occurrence.

This clause, VCSD counsel Peggy McElligott contends, has paralyzed the district's funds, limiting VCSD's power to take care of district business such as treatment plant expansion.

According to McElligott, the agreement is a confusing and complicated one which "couldn't have been intended in the way it was done."

When efforts to settle the dispute out of court failed, the case went to trial Feb. 26.

The case is now under submission, and attorneys for Volk have ten days from March 2, or until this Friday, to file briefs on points of law.

VCSD will then be given time to file answering briefs.

McElligott would not predict when a decision would be reached. "It is a difficult case to cope with," she said, "and it could take up to 60 days for the judge to reach a decision."

Changes in discipline

Council looks at behavior

Student behavior, the affect of due process and the need for articulation between junior high and high schools was reviewed at Wednesday's meeting of the Amador - Pleasanton Schools Community Council.

Gloria Jones, director of pupil personnel services for the district, said the last "model" dealing with discipline had been established 10 years ago.

"We need to take a look at expectations for student discipline in light of due process and to provide articulation encompassing schools in Pleasanton, Dublin and Sunol," Mrs. Jones keynoted.

She illustrated the tremendous changes in the area of student discipline by recalling that when she came to the district in 1967, as a staff member at Amador Valley High School, "Mike Connolly and I (then a Dean at Amador) would use a ruler to measure the length of girls' skirts."

The district, with the aid of council commentary, hopes to develop an updated model for discipline.

Mrs. Jones said the challenge to school districts is to de-institutionalize the "status" (juvenile) offender. Eight million dollars has been legislated for this purpose with Alameda County receiving $1½ million.

The intent is for school districts to "handle their own" rather than routinely refer the chronically truant or misbehaving juvenile to a county agency.

Mrs. Jones said Horizons, a counseling organization, and Hotline have been handling the problem juvenile ... though the latter has placed emphasis on drug offenders.

A key element of dealing with student behavior is the advent of School Attendance Review Boards (SARB) at school district and county levels.

These boards, in fact, are now required under Education Code provisions.

SARB is a group of concerned citizens and educators in the community who by law must help students resolve school attendance or behavior problems.

They meet at least once a month. Members of the local SARB are Mike Connolly, director of adult education for the Amador district, Candy Ingram of Hotline, Pat Nordin of the Pleasanton Police Department, Karen Albertson, a parent, and Mrs. Jones.

Serving on an area-wide panel concerned with student behavior and articulation between districts are Robert Dabney, an assistant principal at Amador Valley High, Robert Hill, an assistant principal at Foothill, Allen Wadsworth, an assistant principal at Dublin High, Dave Cook, assistant principal at Pleasanton Middle School, Robert Tanghe, assistant principal at Harvest Park, and Murray School district administrators Bill Conley and Hal White.

It's two feet too tall and has barbed wire, both illegal according to Pleasanton zoning law, but this fence will provide security for the new city post office. Postmaster Mark Foster defended the "illegal" fence by noting that plans for it were submitted to the city as part of the review on the review on the entire site.

Post office barrier

'Illegal' fence bothers Wood

PLEASANTON — Planning Commission Chairman Walt Wood was upset yesterday that the post office has an "illegal" fence around its building.

Wood was referring to a redwood slat chain link fence, eight feet tall with three strands of barbed wire at the top.

Pleasanton forbids fences more than six feet in height and any barbed wire, said Wood.

Brian Swift of the planning staff said yesterday that it was a case of Pleasanton not having any jurisdiction over the federal government. The post office's regional office, which planned and is building the facility, referred all plans to the city for review as a courtesy.

The planning commission saw the plans, said Swift. He didn't recall the barbed wire on the plans and was not certain about the eight-foot fence.

Postmaster Mark Foster said yesterday that both barbed wire and the eight-foot fence were on the plans and specifications from the beginning. Foster emphasized the need for good security for the new facility. The fence will keep out vandals and thieves who would be attracted to the vehicles parked behind the post office, said Foster.

A six-foot fence wouldn't do much to stop potential thieves, added the postmaster.

Stanley quits Zone 7 race; new entries spark decision

Mike Stanley, a member of the Pleasanton City staff, delivered the following statement to The Times late last evening. It is reprinted in its entirety.

It is very seldom we know the feelings of another person. I feel I must explain mine to clarify my recent action of taking out papers for the Zone 7 board.

I felt that to stand by and let the control of Zone 7, with the awesome power they have and which is about to increase, pass unchallenged to the doomsday peddlers was repugnant to my sense of right and wrong.

Leadership must be humble, not arrogant, as in our society the power rests in the little people. The voter. This then must we use, the vote, to be heard.

There were but three announced candidates as of March 5. This prompted my action.

I feel and believe that we can and must plan now for our sons and daughters if they are to have the good life tomorrow. The problems that were solved by my father and his fathers before him made possible the life we enjoy today. I felt this was not only my duty, but my responsibility as well.

The entering into the race of men such as Ed Kinney, Tom Schweser, and Gib Marguth will assure you of receiving information and a clear choice in the determination of our future.

I in my own way, in my service with the City of Pleasanton I am going to fulfill my duty and responsibility. I am therefore withdrawing as a candidate for the Zone 7 board. I do intend to be active in this campaign and hope that all of you will help in my efforts. "Be part of the solution or you become part of the problem."

DONALD LANDERS

Pressures caused Landers to request reassignment

A desire to step away from continuing pressure situations and to devote more time to family and community is the basis for Don Landers' decision to request reassignment from his present position as Foothill High School principal.

Landers submitted his request and it was approved at Tuesday's Amador Valley Joint High School District board meeting. He hopes to be reassigned to a part-time administration position that would retain ties with students.

A teacher and administrator for 31 years, Landers has been in the Amador district 12 years, being principal at Amador during a four-year period when the student body enrollment went from 900 to 2,000. He then opened Dublin High School and stayed at the district's second campus for six years. He then succeeded Neil Sweeney as principal at Foothill and has helped bring the school forward to where it will have its first senior class next fall.

Prior to his association with the Amador district Landers helped open a high school at Mercer Island, Washington, and was also principal of a school at Othello, Washington, that experienced considerable growth during his tenure as chief administrator.

Landers has been a high school principal for 22 years, a counselor five years and a classroom teacher four years.

Current assistant principals at the school are Clark Thayne, in his third year, and Robert Hill, in his first year.

Landers and his wife have five children. They reside in Pleasanton.

Carl Krause, assistant superintendent for personnel, said the recruitment process to find a successor will be open to qualified personnel in the district as well as statewide.

Oil the boots for March of Dimes trek

Two to three thousand marchers of all ages are expected to participate — rain or shine — in the March of Dimes Walkathon Saturday, March 13.

The walk begins between 8 and 9 a.m. at the Alameda County Fairgrounds in Pleasanton, and ends at the fairgrounds after a 20-mile trek through Pleasanton and Livermore.

At noon, walkers will stop for a brown-bag picnic at Sunset Park in Livermore. McDonald's will offer an orange drink for lunch and at two other stops along the way.

The March will be led by civic officials and Football Stars Dan Connors and Leo Nomolini, along with the March of Dimes poster boy, San Ramon Cub Scout Pack 814 and the Pleasanton Juniors.

Approximately 100 adults from law enforcement groups, civil air patrol, the army reserves and Voice of the Valley Radio Club will keep the walk running smoothly and safely.

Members of the Alameda-Contra Costa Podiatry Association will provide emergency foot care, while the county sheriff's forces drive "poop out" buses for those who falter.

Marchers will be greeted at journey's end by "The Sun" rock group of San Jose, refreshments by McDonald's, and a drawing for prizes conducted by Mike Cleary of KNBR radio.

In case of heavy rain, the route will be shortened to four miles and each mile walked will be computed as five in collecting pledges. Two thousand walkers braved wet weather last year to collect $25,730.

Sponsor sheets for walkers are available at McDonald's in Livermore and Dublin, the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce, Radio Station KKKI in Livermore or by calling 836-2267.

The Weekend Training Academy of Alameda County Probation Department will handle clean-up chores under the direction of Jack Hystad.

Police seek Pleasanton ring bandit

PLEASANTON — City police are still in pursuit of a young male adult who got away with an $8,000 ring from a Highland Oaks housewife Thursday afternoon.

The theft occurred as the young man entered the home of Diane Bugnatte about 4 p.m. using the pretense of getting Bugnatte to sign for a prize supposedly awarded by a store. The armed culprit, after a struggle, left with the ring.

An alert neighbor got the license number of the suspect's car and Mrs. Bugnatte, a commercial artist, was able to provide police with an accurate sketch of her assailant.

The car was later recovered in Crow Canyon and police were still looking for the thief.

Murray intermediate funding plea set today in capital

The Murray School District will learn Monday shortly after 4 p.m. if they are to receive full, partial or no funding for the intermediate school planned for the Dolan site in Dublin.

Assistant Superintendent Heinz Gewing and business manager Phillip Chubb will journey to Sacramento to testify on behalf of the district's application for funding before the State Allocations Board in the State Capital Building.

The district already has bond monies remaining from 1972 to cover construction of one-half of the intermediate school project.

Outcome of Monday's session could also have a direct bearing on the $1 million bond issue now slated to be put before the electorate again on June 8.

District leaders have informed The Times that though a resolution ordering the bond issue be placed on the June 8 ballot was approved Monday, it still could be pulled off if their is a large public hue and cry to do so before the end of the month.

At last Monday night's special meeting, the three trustees present voted for the resolution. Board president Bob Foster was out of the area on business and Linda Jeffery, who won the trustee election March 2, has not been seated and cannot vote or comment officially until she is sworn in.

The next regular meeting of the Murray board is now scheduled for Monday, March 22 at Dublin School. Once canvass of the vote has been completed Mrs. Jeffery may be sworn in.

Monday's meeting is perhaps the most crucial one involving the Murray district in a year or more.

Gewing said Thursday the State Allocations Board will be handling many other items in addition to Murray's bid for funding, but he was hopeful a decision would be arrived at.

Accompanying Gewing and Chubb will be district architect James Aitken, who has planned the seventh - eighth grade school planned for the site in Silvergate.

The two men reportedly offered to buy the tires to use as chicken feeders, then demanded better quality tires than the ones originally agreed upon.

Half-cent tax issue

BART, MTC fight over funds

Alameda County Bureau
OAKLAND — Both BART and the Metropolitan Transportation Commission will battle over making the once temporary half-cent sales tax increment paid in the three BART counties permanent.

But while their goals are the same, the separate pieces of yet-to-be introduced legislation differ radically in application.

The MTC board voted unanimously to support a proposal that will extend the sales tax permanently, but, after July 1, 1979, will levy only 65 percent of the revenues to the financially starved rapid transit district.

The remaining 35 percent would be channeled to AC Transit and the San Francisco Muni.

BART wants all revenues from the sales tax increment, and claims it will have to curtail its three-month-old night service without them.

MTC Chairman John C. Beckett, a Santa Clara County Supervisor, disagreed, saying night service will not have to be cut.

"I'm a supporter of night service. I believe in it," he said. "But BART's not ready for weekend service. It's mainly technical difficulties, but financial problems play a part, too."

MTC Commissioners said Assemblyman Victor Calvo (D-Mt. View) will carry their legislation, while BART General Manager Frank Herringer declined to name his district's sponsor.

It has been rumored that BART could not find a legislative backer from the three counties in the district, but Herringer said yesterday that the proposed legislation would be introduced by Monday's legislative deadline "by someone from a BART county."

The bill is expected to surface in the Assembly.

The MTC package would give BART all the half-cent tax revenue until mid-1979 or $168.5 million, whichever comes first. Current legislation provides some $82.2 million to carry the district through mid-1977.

"We're looking at the big picture," said Beckett, "to help solve the financial problems of all the Bay Area's transit systems, not just BART."

The commission claims it talked with transit officials and legislators and concluded that "a full financial program" for the districts could not be carried through the legislature in an election year.

Only "bare bones funding, with other funding provided in a second stage," could make it, commissioners said.

An additional, one percent, vehicle in-lieu tax could be introduced later.

Replied Herringer: "It's very poor politics to compromise a bill before you put it in. You don't ask for something you know is inadequate at the start."

Night service "probably" will be curtailed, he said, while weekend expansion and the direct Richmond-Daly City run "definitely" are out. Train runs on the heavily used Concord line will be cut back, too, he predicted.

Alameda County Supervisor Joseph Bort, the county's representative on the Bay Area wide commission, said "The public knows BART is broke, but it doesn't know that AC and the Muni are broke, too."

"The public may not think twice about giving a half-cent to BART because they don't know the others are broke."

Bort supports the MTC bill, but suggests a referendum for yet another half-cent transit tax.

Alameda, Contra Costa and San Francisco Counties would then pay seven percent sales tax.

The people in Santa Clara and San Mateo Counties recently passed half-cent increment taxes, he argued, and those in the BART counties might be willing to do the same.

LeClaire eyes ABAG seat

The Cities of Pleasanton and Livermore are expected to follow the advice given at the Alameda County Mayors' Conference to nominate representatives from their cities for an appointment to the Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG) Environmental Management Task Force.

Pleasanton will offer Councilwoman Joyce LeClaire's name for the Mayors' Conference appointment to the ABAG task force while Livermore has not yet decided who it will nominate.

Pleasanton Mayor Robert Philcox was optimistic about the possibility of LeClaire receiving the appointment by the Mayors' Conference.

Thirteen Alameda County cities are members of the Conference and valley appointments to key regional agencies from the Conference are rare.

San Leandro Mayor Jack Malter currently serves as the Conference appointment on the ABAG task force and although a new appointment was scheduled to be made at the Mayors' Conference Wednesday night it was continued to next month. There has been speculation Malter will be re-appointed to the ABAG task force.

According to Newark Mayor James Balentine, chairman of the Conference's city selection committee, the ABAG Environmental Management Task Force "very shortly will be where the action is."

He said he thought the task force would be the successor to the regional air and water quality control districts and called it "one of the major, most important committees people can serve on."

In other business, the Conference appointed Alameda Mayor Chuck Corica to fill out the unexpired term of Arthur Flegal on the Alameda County Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO). That seat expires in May 1977.

The Conference also re-appointed Mayor Malter to a full four-year term on LAFCO.

Both appointments had been expected.

MGA

Bob Goodman talks about MGA vs Sony and CONTEMPORARY TV service policies.

THE TV FIGHT OF THE CENTURY!

VS. SONY

There are two television lines in the top quality class... MGA and Sony. As a servicing dealership we chose to sell the one best line we could find... the one that would best support our reputation and make our customers the happiest.

Both MGA and Sony have no equal when it comes to picture quality... though, we like many, think MGA has a definite edge. Both have attractive slimline cabinets that would enhance any decor. It's only when you investigate their engineering, ease of service and warranty that the differences become obvious. For instance... Sony and most other television sets have conventional, mechanical tuners which need tuner maintenance periodically... contacts become corroded, knobs break, and reception becomes a problem. MGA has a touch-tuning system with no moving parts or knobs at all. It would be very unusual for it to ever require service.

Sony electronic parts are soldered to non-removable circuit boards. When parts fail, a costly shop repair invariably results. MGA uses individual plug-in modules replaceable in the home. Incidentally, in three years and after having sold more than 200 MGA sets, we have not had to replace a single module.

Consider, too, that Sony has a 90 days labor warranty and it must be carried in to a servicing agency. MGA provides a full one year warranty and in-home service if the set is larger than 17". Because of its unique reliability we warranty all our MGA's a full three years including labor, parts and picture tube.

MGA, itself, does very little advertising, but it is made by a very impressive company: Mitsubishi Electric Company. They make speakers for Pioneer, cameras for Nikon, components for Marantz, Colts for Dodge, the MU-2 airplane and a large number of the highest quality products throughout the world... including every component in MGA televisions.

By the way... there are some shops who repair only the sets they've sold. We realize that not everyone can take his set back to where it was purchased if it develops a problem. Since it is very rare that we have an MGA in our shop for repairs, we have made our service department — one of the largest and best equipped in the valley — available to those customers in need of professional repairs. We are extremely proud of our reputation for prompt service and repairs that restore the TV to its normal operating condition.

And now comes the performance

It has been an interesting ten years in the life of these several communities. From our rural days when only Livermore and Pleasanton offered modest urban intrusion onto this vale, through a period in the late sixties that saw us produce 3000 dwelling units, and more, in a single year. Then finally, inevitably, the great backlash to growth, swinging the pendulum in the other direction, with no greater reason than it had first gone astray.

The people — if we can conclude from what we hear, and how you vote — are tired of both those extremes. We are all smart enough to know that "growth for growth's sake" is no longer acceptable. But we have also learned about the economy, about jobs lost, homes we can no longer afford, parks without turf, streets that go nowhere.

It would seem now that the community mood is "Let's finish what we started, but let's do it with some common sense." That is little enough to ask.

It is also the very least we should expect from those who aspire to lead us, through this vale of fears. That is a team effort, and we are all going to rise or fall on the performance of any one of them.

The "first woman mayor of Livermore" is less one city's claim to fame than it is the total Valley's concern for enlightened leadership from that largest and strongest of these several communities. That Pleasanton is able to bridge the generation gap with a young, home-town mayor is commendable, but only if he is able to move his city into closer harmony with the aspirations of two very large, very close neighbors.

The Valley Community Services District board of directors and the Zone 7 panel are equally important, equally responsible in this Valley game plan. We have always been blessed with a great bunch of individualists; what we need are some leaders with four - community vision.

Given all that — plus a local Assemblyman who really seems to identify and a supervisor who might really try — there is hope that that the Valleys of Livermore and Amador and San Ramon might at long last come together as a workable force, sharing common problems, working toward common goals.

That would be a refreshing change from what we have experienced in the last five years.

Hospital in SRV

City of Livermore would be badly misreading the reaction of San Ramon Valley's doctors if that city concludes talk of a San Ramon hospital is "little more than childish reaction to our plans for a local tax on all doctors practicing at Valley Memorial Hospital."

The amount of that tax, even if Livermore were to get its way, is piddling. The reaction of San Ramon's doctors is very real. The real thrust is not just "double taxation"; the campaign is rather one aimed at taking advantage of the slightest Livermore slip in order to justify a new medical center in the northwest end of this Valley.

There has been criticism of Valley Memorial Hospital's long-term plan for a second "acute care facility" in Pleasanton. VMH argues that it has a responsibility to bring its service closer to the center of a population that now stretches from Crow Canyon Road to Altamont Pass, from Tassajara to Sunol.

Some Livermore boosters (most notably city council members and local doctors with investment in offices close by the existing VMH site) see this VMH plan as a threat to that one community's claim to medical care, and to its considerable financial spinoff.

VMH's board of directors has been inclined to take the broader view, of a total service area, of patients — real and potential — in five communities, rather than just one. If they took any other view, those directors would be derelict in their duty.

If City of Livermore takes any but the most judicious view of the San Ramon doctors' "build our own hospital" reaction, then they would be rendering a terrible dis-service to Valley Memorial Hospital, and to any chances for ever gaining the kind of full-service hospital our people should have.

City's flag falters

Does patriotism close at 5 o'clock?
Livermore's flag (flying over the city building) is torn in two places! After all these years, it would be nice to look up to a proper flag.

Sound and Fury
Walt Hecox

A quiet day at the office and a chill wind at Sunol Valley Golf Course where a puffy, gray overcast fought a winning battle to keep the sun off the fairways.

Lunch in the pavillion room, a fat man's lunch called "The slimmer" which includes four ounces of ground beef and almost twice that much cottage cheese.

There is an eight ounce slimmer on the menu but a Capitola physician who likes to see me suffer only allows me four ounces of beef a day. So the junior size slimmer is for me. I'm not a fat man any more. But I don't want those 50 pounds back either so I stick to the diet plates.

Sunol appears to be winning its heretofore losing economic battle. The long line of losing managers has been succeeded by the boss himself, Mr. Frank Ivaldi, and the effect of his presence shows.

A fair crowd filled tables and chairs in the Pavillion Room at two p.m., late lunching for most folks but just right for a man who cleans off his desk at 7 p.m. Ivaldi drifted by while I was finishing my tea. A handsome man after three score years on this planet, affable, smiling, friendly as a puppy. The old Frank Ivaldi, the one I knew before worry gnawed his nerves raw a couple of years ago.

Dan Russell stopped to chat. The handsome graduate of the United States Marine Corps has changed more than he knows during his seven year tenure at Sunol.

Danny is head professional now, the number two man to Ivaldi, and his success shows in more ways than one. He is still as nice a fellow as a man would want to meet, but the weight of responsibility shows.

So does the weight of a few extra carbograms. Danny does all right on the golf course but he might have a little trouble on the grinder these days. The Bakersfield High quarterback of yesterday looks more like a lineman today.

I took a cart for a drive through the chill wind and the land of nostalgia.

Once I knew Sunol so well I could play in the dark of night and never get lost Wednesday I took a wrong turn at the end of the first hole.

Like playing the piano and the typewriter, it all comes back. A man who can one finger the Indian Love Call once can do it 20 years later without having seen a piano during the interval.

So it was with Sunol.

I rode past the second green and remembered Tony Manzoni taking four shots to get down after laying the ball to within 20 feet of the green with his drive on the opening round of the Alameda County Open during that strange week in January back in the days of yore.

From the third tee I could look out at the little plateau, across the creek and above the gully 310 yards away, where Mike DeLozier always told newcomers to hit their tee shots and which he never missed himself.

Except, of course, during tournaments. That 520 yard third was an eagle hole for Mike during a practice round. Some tournaments he took double bogies there.

FOCUS/ Key school matters

An act of faith

It behooves school districts, especially those that have tax or bond measures coming up, to nurture their relationships with the general public.

For example... The administration and boards of the Amador and Pleasanton school districts have not acted in the best faith as regards public access to documents that could eventually hit them hardest in the pocket book. Namely the contract proposals presented at public meetings by teacher organizations.

Superintendent Bruce Newlin tells us that an announcement, as to where the Amador Valley Teachers Association proposal could be found, was made public at last week's meeting. Apparently the press was not in the room at the time because this writer heard no such announcement.

But that's not the important item. What IS important is that school districts realize they can't sit back, make an announcement (usually before an audience that consists of a handful of teachers and administrators) and expect the public at large to know about it.

It is a school district's responsibility to make sure as many persons in the district know about any important subject... such as the availability of a teacher group's (AVTA) contract proposal.

If this entails having a clerk or secretary contact all school parent groups and every other group interested (homeowners groups, AAUW), then it should be done.

I understand that no announcement was made at the Amador school board meeting Tuesday as regards availability of the Amador teacher group's contract proposal.

Are those interested supposed to know where we might find a copy of same?

The school districts, at least in the valley, have done a good job of calling attention to their special events (assemblies, student achievement, new programs offered) but they get a "need to improve" mark from us in regards to the subject discussed here.

An article on Page 6 of Tuesday's Times provided a synopsis of a report made by Oakland Mayor John Reading "to the people" on the subject "The Constitutional Right to Personal Security."

Basis for Reading's report is The Youthful Violent Offender Act, drafted by the Alameda County District Attorney's Office, approved by the County

Grand Jury and introduced into the State Legislature bill mill by Assemblyman Alister McAllister on Feb. 5.

Reading detailed how an Oakland daily had editorialized on the Act — supposedly calling it (The Youthful Violent Offender Act) a "knee jerk reaction that all youths accused of violent crimes should be drawn and quartered or summarily thrown into the slammer."

Needless to say the Act and Reading's resultant "special report" have drawn a galaxy of comments.

We don't intend commenting on another person's (even the Mayor of Oakland) comments on another newspaper's editorial comments.

But we would like to write a couple hundred more words on the Act and the Assembly committee that has killed 54 criminal justice reform bills in the last three years.

An example of how some previous bills have been summarily quashed by this committee is described in Reading's report.

Representatives of the Alameda County District Attorney's Office, with elderly victims of violent crime from Oakland and San Francisco, journeyed to Sacramento in August of 1975 to testify in favor of a bill similar in many respects to The Youthful Violent Offender Act. That bill had previously passed the Senate 36-0.

Despite no testimony in opposition to the bill, Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Beverly Hills, and two other committee members voted against the bill and killed it.

Also in August, San Francisco's new Mayor, then Senator George Moscone, commented generally on the "blockade Senate-passed legislation was running into in the Assembly," and added that he "thought decisions on bills are being made in secret." He also declared, "The Assembly leadership has set itself up, with or without agreement of the Governor's office, to decide which bills they will allow the Governor to sign or veto."

As President Gerald Ford said in his State of the Union Message on Jan. 19, "Under the Constitution, the greatest responsibility for curbing crime lies with state and local authorities. They are the front-line fighters in the war against crime."

As Reading stated in his report, "The inability of California's state government to respond to this war as it relates to juvenile justice, has made conscripts of local governments. We must do everything we can to meet the challenge."

Letters to the Times

Frank Brandes

Editor, The Times:

I would like to express my sincere appreciation to the dedicated workers who were so instrumental in my successful election to the Pleasanton City Council.

Thank you to all who voted for me, walked precincts, held coffees, made phone calls, put up signs, contributed money, worked on fund raisers or attended staff meetings. A special thanks to the extraordinary efforts of my wife Judy, Dean and Mary Ann Wagerman, Ken and Linda Geppert, Dennis and Sandy Gunnarson, Gary and Cheryl Duncan, John and Sue Aubuchon, Gil and Pat Maines, the Senior Citizens at Pleasanton Gardens and all the Pleasanton Fire Fighters.

I am committed to take a strong positive approach to the long standing problems of our city. Please contact me regarding any issues of concern to you. I need your input and support.

Frank Brandes
Pleasanton City Councilman

Stark's critic

Editor, The Times:

I am just a little fed-up with bureaucratslike Congressman Portney "Pete" Stark. I'm sure that I am not alone.

Pete Stark is a liberal ass! I am a registered Democrat but I am astounded to think that he is in my political ranks and I am even more astounded that he was voted into office.

I have received Pete Starks Newsletter dated March, 1976. His voting record is absurd. One would think that he learned something while being in business, Re: Bank in Walnut Creek. Apparently he digressed to the adolescent thinking of a rich man's son who has never had to work. I mean really work for wages. He is one of many rich people in government who force their thinking on the American people by making a law.

Starks voting record is super bad. He tries to stimulate the economy by spending tax dollars. The tax dollars come from the working people. It is common knowledge if you pay a man $200 per week with Federal dollars he returns a small percentage of that $200 in income tax. The other 80-90% comes from the Fed creating a deficit. A deficit in the Fed creates inflation, then we are back on the same old merry-go-round that Nixon got us into.

This piece of crap newsletter he sent to me. It is nothing more than a piece of propaganda in a pre-elected period. He will never convince me that Tax dollars were not spend to print this hogwash. The next time he prints one, he should use toilet paper so that it will be of some beneficial use to the receiving public.

The Palm third is one of the few on the course today which is not equipped with a gravel or paved cart path and the little vehicle rattled and rumbled while I swooped through the gully, over the hill and down to the green at the bottom.

Up again, 440 yards into the wind, a par four hole where some professionals need a wood for their second shot, among them Deane Beman, current commissioner of the Tournament Players Association, who once played himself out of contention during the Alameda County Open when he lodged his wood against the bole of a small palm and needed three strokes to get down.

Nine years Sunol has survived now through some good years and some pure hell with a thousand memories along the way for the man in this corner.

High on the hill I passed the kidney shaped green of the 16th Palm hole and remembered the longest putt I ever put down for a birdie, a curling devil, 90 feet from putter to cup.

Down the hill there is a gully beside the eighth Cypress where a Highway Patrolman at a department tournament disregarded the advice he gave drivers on the road and, with a full load of beer aboard, drove his cart off the course and into a ravine, breaking his leg in the process.

There is a sloping green in the second Cypress where Terrible Tommie Bolt almost putted the wrong ball while all of us waited for the sky to fall when he did.

Beyond it the sudden abutment beside the old highway bordering the course where the golf coach for a nearby college once drove his automobile into the ditch one damp evening after he had been drinking not wisely or too well.

A thousand memories, too many for this small space, and a current revival at the big layout at the end of Andrade Road.

round the town

(NOTICE — the following comments are rated FTOF — For Those Over Forty. All others are urged to turn to today's comic page.)

Gilbert Messa might rate as something of a hero on today's scale Local boy with limited prospects... likes to work with youngsters... but not much encouragement there in a city of 2000... perseveres anyway to create home-town Boys Club... then just when things look promising, Gil is struck down with polio.

The story could have ended there, with food stamps and tax-supported therapy. But Gil wasn't about to become a basket case. He fought back from polio, and — even in an endeavor that emphasized physical ability, — Gil was able to prove that a big heart is often as good as a strong back.

From that 1950's beginning, in a "Boys Club" hacked out of the second floor storage area above B.H. Hall's store in downtown Pleasanton, Gil Messa went on to a career in that field. From Pleasanton to Pittsburg to San Mateo, and now "Associate Director, Boys Clubs of America."

His jurisdiction is the six western states, his domain 172 clubs, and his pride is "the tens of thousands of boys I have been able to work with, and maybe help a little, throughout the years."

Quite an accomplishment, for a crippled kid of limited potential, from the rural backwoods of America.

Gil was not the Valley's only "success story" on that score. The name "Al Caffodio" means little to today's generations, other than as the title for a Valley soccer league, that's mighty hard to spell. But there was a day when Al Caffodio was "Mr. Junior Sports" for the rural hamlets of Livermore and Pleasanton, the villages of Sunol and Dublin.

Al had earned his spurs in the rodeo business, first as business agent for Gene Autry, and later when Dublin was the focal point for one of the Bay Area's finest rodeos. When that challenge ran its course, Al "retired" to private business, operating a thriving "Village Canteen" in the heart of what was then Livermore's total retail scene.

But Al Caffodio's ideas on "retirement" from the community scene don't jibe with today's over-50 set. He approached me — about 15 years ago — with "this kind of an idea" he was kicking around. Al had in mind to "bring together kids from every elementary school in the Valley for one gigantic field day."

The plan was preposterous. Even the logistics of transporting thousands of youngsters onto one location, let alone organizing them into a program of games etc., was mind boggling. And that is exactly why Al Caffodio Caffodio set out to do it.

And he did. Remarkably, no one was killed (although a few dads were trampled on) and everything went off swimmingly. That field day also formed the base for other intra-Valley sports, and it resulted also in the finest tribute succeeding generations to that man... the "Al Caffodio Soccer League" for boys and girls throughout these several communities.

Al's busy life was terminated a few years back, just when he was getting some new ideas on this-n-that for the community he loved. But tens of thousands of kids will forever be indebted to the former rodeo booster turned businessman, who just never knew when to quit.

There are others who come to mind... "Tex" Spruiell and Charlie Fracisco in Livermore... Neil Sweeney Warren and Warren Harding in Pleasanton... Mrs. Charles McGonegal in Sunol... people whose interest enthusiasm for life, and for others, goes back a quarter century or more, but who never seem to lose any of that old verve.

All of which brings me around to "Employ the Older Worker Week." Our beloved state government is urging the news media to call society's attention to "the needs and the talents of those over 40."

Frankly, most of those over 40 of our acquaintance have always been able to take care of themselves, and still do very well, thank you. And as for their talents, they aren't the type who look to early pensions, welfare or what have you. Too busy looking forward to tomorrow's big challenge, to think about next year's downer.

I told you this was recommended reading just for those over 40. The rest of you kids can have equal time, after you've really earned your spurs.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Wood leads All-Star squad

Ted Wood won't have the EBAL to kick around anymore. And in grateful acknowledgement of that fact league coaches named him to the All-EBAL basketball team for the second straight year this morning.

Wood heads up the 10-man squad as the EBAL's leading scorer with a 22.7 points per game average through the league campaign.

He is joined on the all-star squad by Ron Low of Monte Vista, the only other repeater from last year's team. Low was seventh in the league in scoring with a 16.5 per game average.

League champion Amador Valley placed Mike Hill and Rob Yackley on the All-EBAL team.

The second place club, Granada, landed berths for Mike Fracisco and Joe Wujek.

Joining Wood from Livermore is Curt Groth. San Ramon's Jim Hogeboom is honored on the all-star unit, along with Cliff Johnson, Dublin, and California's Larry Walters.

Honorable mention went to Lance Blanshei of Monte Vista, and Brad Blake, San Ramon. Walters and Wujek are the only juniors on the team.

Wood is the only player who had his berth locked up before the season began.

Livermore's 6-2 guard had what many consider the finest season ever by an EBAL back court man. He was an indefatigable floor leader and defensive player as well as the Livermore's finest shooter. Wood was also an outstanding rebounder.

St Mary's College coach Frank LaPorte watched Wood play once. Then he gave him a full scholarship.

Ted and Curt Groth sparked Livermore to one of its best seasons in years. They went on a scoring binge last week in the Livermore City Classic, helping the Cowboys to third place.

Groth finished the EBAL season with a 16.3 scoring average, third behind Wood and Hogeboom.

Yackley and Hill were the cornerstones of Amador's third consecutive EBAL title winner, averaging 16 and 15 points per game.

They were the settling influences on a predominantly junior team.

Yackley was a three-year varsity performer for the Dons.

My son the schlemiel

Mike Zampa

Marv McKean has it all working. The dark complexion and black hair, the devilish smile that indicates he knows something we don't.

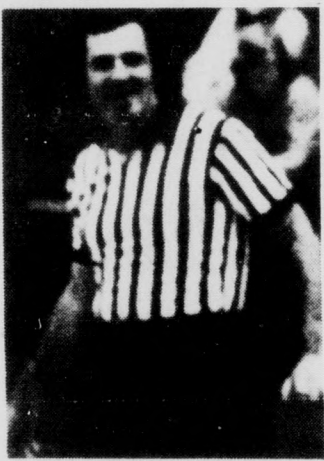

At 37 he has accomplished a great deal in sports, first as a multi-talented athlete at San Jose State, then as a fine high school football coach and finally as coach at Los Medanos College.

Handsome, popular, successful, Marv's got it all.

But why does he jeopardize it like he does? What sense does it make to throw away social standing before a crowd of fire breathing maniacs?

Marv is a high school basketball referee. A lot of people will tell you that's the only flaw in his character. They'll say it's an early warning signal of sado-masochistic tendencies.

To rabid fans, basketball officials are appreciated like locust, fit only for extermination. They wear funny striped shirts that cloud vision and blur rational judgement. They make absurd calls aimed at costing some 15-year old a chance in the NBA hardship draft.

MARV MCKEAN

McKean has listened to such characterizations for more than a decade. Though he is generally considered one of the best basketball officials working the EBAL, he too is the target of zealots. The question is why? Certainly things were not enough as a coach. What good does it do to pick up a whistle and touch off a wave of morose discursing on Marv's parentage?

"I feel like I'm contributing something to the game," says McKean, who is affiliated with the Contra Costa Basketball Official's Association. "We perform a service, and most of the time it's at a pretty high level of proficiency. If it wasn't for the official, there'd be no competitive athletics for kids. Some of the people who criticize us ought to stop and think about that sometimes."

I could stay home on Tuesday and Friday nights and work recreation league basketball for more money than I make right now," McKean says. "I've thought about it often. But I'd be letting down the game of basketball. If needs officials."

It's just that the officials need upgrading, detractors are saying. This has been a bad year for the referee in the EBAL. Many associations have forwarded pay hike requests to the league, which finds itself in a financial bind. Instead of dealing with the salary question, however, it struck back with a harangue against the folks who officiate.

The caliber of officials is not good, it has been charged. Considering the part-time nature of the profession, it is quite good, came the answer from the refs.

Just like a goal-tending call, it's a matter of judgement.

What officials resent, are charges that they take up whistles for money. Most refs are in it for the kids, McKean says. The pay is secondary. "Sure, they do earn a little spending money," he says. "But I know I could make more money in the same amount of time doing something else."

On a busy Friday McKean can work freshman and varsity basketball and earn $40. The chore takes up 10 hours of the day, however. And it takes a toll at the gas pump when a Concord-based official is dispatched to Brentwood or Livermore.

The current dickering over pay hikes may sever relations between athletic leagues and their referee's associations when the next school year rolls around.

But even after that hassle is settled, the bitter image of officials will remain.

They're the bad guys, the ones who cost us the game.

That's a damaging attitude, according to McKean, because it infers a team can't lose. "They either win, or the officials beat them," he says sardonically. "It's a real crime because there are times when kids have to sit down and evaluate themselves and say that they didn't play well. It's a shame they never get to lose."

McKean served as a baseball umpire until last year, but decided to drop it for the tranquility of a basketball gymnasium on Friday night.

MV cagers top Jackets

CONCORD — Monte Vista High School faces a probable showdown with Catholic Athletic League powerhouse Moreau in the semi-finals of the longwindedly named Concord Classic Girls Invitational Basketball Tournament here tonight at 8:15 p.m.

The Mustangs advanced to the second round by holding off the Berkeley Yellowjackets, 57-47, last night in the Concord High School gym.

Berkeley cut the MV lead to five late in the fourth quarter, but a 20-foot-plus shot by all-league guard Carol Dolsby broke the 'Jackets momentum and the Mustangs pulled away.

The other half of Monte Vista's hustling all-league backcourt tandem, Linda Silva, led all scorers with 23 points, primarily on opportunity shots — i.e., she was in the right place at the right time.

Time after time, the quick-handed Mustang slapped the ball away from a Berkeley player and popped a short jumper.

That was the story all night for the 'Jackets. Once they got the ball upcourt, they were the equals of Monte Vista with strong offense and rebounding by 5-7 junior Deborah Davis. Davis scored 22 points, all from the field, and got help on the boards from 5-8 Candy Ross.

But, with the exception of tiny, five-foot, guard Patty Lut, Berkeley couldn't dribble well and MV swooped down for numerous steals and interceptions.

Monte Vista's board strength came from 5-9 sophomore Karin Fischer and 5-8 junior Sue Collar, who along with all-league forward Laura Fumagalli and reserve Lynn Brooks are the tallest of MV's exceptionally small EBAL championship team.

Moreau, meanwhile, was scheduled to play Pacifica in yesterday's final game. The Spartans, a last minute substitution for Amador Valley (forced to withdraw when three key injuries depleted its nine-girl roster), were not a likely match for the Mariners.

The Hayward team, with only two seniors on its 14-player roster, is led by forwards Janice Pontes and Becky Oliveira along with center Colleen Galloway and scrappy 5-1 guard Rockie Candelario, who should match up well with MV's Silva.

— Dave Weber

Wood heads league scorers

Ted Wood of Livermore High finished as the EBAL's leading scorer for the 1976 basketball campaign, which didn't require a calculator to determine, just a quick glance at the senior guard's performance.

The St. Mary's bound all-leaguer scored 318 points in 14 league games to top Jim Hogeboom of San Ramon, second with 254.

The EBAL based its scoring stats on total points, not average per game.

Third was Wood's Livermore teammate, Curt Groth. He totalled 229 points.

A pair of Amador Valley all-leaguers, Rob Yackley and Mike Hill finished fourth and fifth with 224, and 211 points.

In the junior varsity division, two San Ramon juniors, Brad Hallock and Phil Wiltz topped the scoring parade.

Hallock finished with 256 points, and Wiltz had 212.

EBAL champion Amador had Mike Hansen in the sixth position with 165 points. Teammate Rick Howard was seventh at 161.

He goes along with the popular contention that it's the toughest game to call — a lot of judgement, and a lot of contact in essentially a non-contact sport.

"It's harder to officiate today because the game has changed. Ten years ago any contact was a foul. Now coaches teach contact and force you to make a judgement. I'm not saying that's wrong, just that it's harder."

There are simple rules to follow in officiating basketball, McKean says. Be consistent, and be sure of your call before the whistle blows. Also, accept the axiom that the winner won't complain and the loser won't compliment.

The bottom line is this, he says.

"If the players on the court are satisfied, if they're not upset about my calls, then I don't care what the heck the coach or the fans say. I've done my job."

Dublin sprinters stand out

Dublin High School showed why it could be one of the top sprint schools in the East Bay Area track season yesterday as the Gaels romped over American of Fremont, 81½ to 44½ on the latters' track. Dublin was paced by sprinter John Batchelor, who won the 100 in 10.1 and the 220 in 23.7 against a cross-wind. Batchelor also ran on the Gael 440-yard relay team which took a 45.1 win. The Gaels won the North Coast Section sophomore relay title last spring with Batchelor on it. Chuck Ganguss aided the Dublin cause with wins in the 330 low hurdles (40.2), 120 highs (14.8) and a strong anchor on the winning mile relay team (3:55.0).

Rick and Tony Chan also helped the Gaels' sprint totals. Rick took second in the 100 and third in the 220. Tony was third in the long jump. Jim Boulware won the long jump for Dublin with a 19 3/4 leap.

American fattened up in the weight events, sweeping both the discus and the shot put.

The Dublin junior varsity won, 77-52. There was no girls' competition.

First Return, Double Dealer, Classy Surgeon, Antiquary and Samburu completed the field entered Thursday for the mile and sixteenth event.

Telly's Pop, owned by actor Telly Savalas and producer Howard Koch, will carry top weight of 122 pounds and start from the sixth position under jockey Francisco Mena. An Act, who has had just three races, will be ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., carry 117 pounds and start from the No. 3 spot.

The other five 3-year-olds will carry 112 pounds apiece.

Bruins win cage title

The Bruins wrapped up the Senior B Division title in Pleasanton kids basketball last weekend with a 27-12 rout of the Bears, running their record to 8-0.

The Bears dropped to 5-3 on the season. Kevin Elurum's 10 points sparked the Bruins to their title. Mark Hitsman had six points for the losers.

The Trotters went to overtime to eclipse the P-Town Pros, 31-29. Dan Schaffer of the winners had 19 points, and Scott Donham added 11. John Weiser scored 13 points for P-Town. Pat McCloud and Paul Nangle sparked the Trotter defense.

Barry Mori scored 10 points as the Celtics won their fifth game, defeating the Trojans, 32-13. Chris Lata and Bill Dyreck each had six points.

Balanced scoring by the Nets produced a 35-12 rout of the Bullets. Mark Taylor led everyone with nine points. Teammates Randy Kendall and Greg Moreland had eight apiece, and Rich McNatt had seven.

In triple overtime sudden death, the Supersonics trimmed the Warriors, 31-29. Mike Bell paced the winners with seven points. For the Warriors, Leroy Gange scored nine, and Charles Fany, eight.

The Knicks blasted the Lakers, 52-16. Roy Cobb scored 20 points, Greg Peters and Rich Moran had 11 each. Mark Gabrielson of the Lakers had 12.

Despite being shut out in two different quarters, the Rockets topped the Trailblazers, 16-10. J.J. Costello had nine points, and Tim Vanek and Bill Stewart played fine defense.

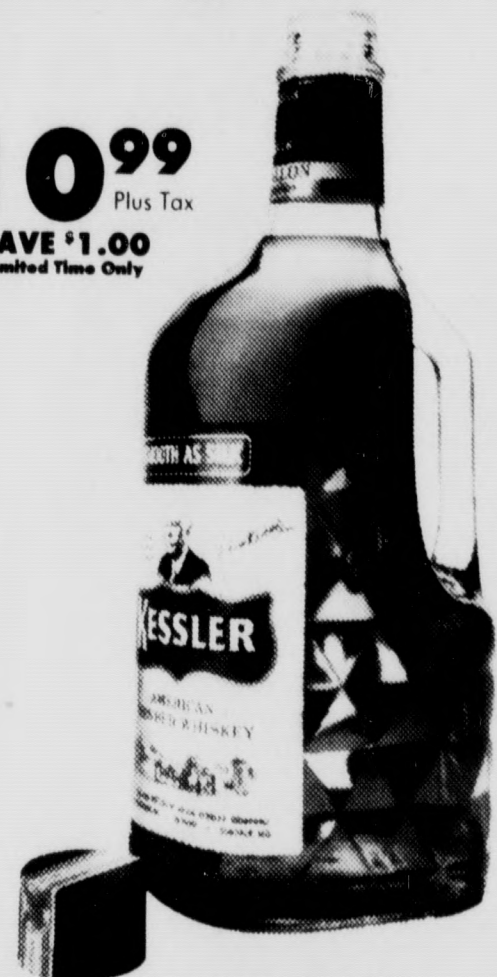

The Bullets tripped the Warriors, 36-10, as David Blanchard scored nine points, and Dave Deshler, seven. Andy Moran added six. Greg Scott of the Warriors had five points.

Andy Brendlinger and Freg Romney led a good Piston defense in holding off the Celtics, 38-14. Chris Betts scored 15 points, and Whitney Clark added 11.

Brad Kinney's eight points carried the Lakers past the Supersonics, 17-7. Todd Tofaute and Scott Mundle played fine defense.

Problems turned into opportunities

LIVERMORE — Problems can be turned into opportunities for discovering God's power. James M. McGrew, C.S., of Boston, will tell a public audience Saturday at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, 263 So. M. St., Livermore at 11 a.m. in the Sunday School Auditorium. Mr. McGrew holds both bachelor's and master's degrees in business administration from the University of Chicago. During more than 30 years in business, he has held executive positions as an officer and director of a large worldwide manufacturing corporation.

From 1966 to 1973 he was Controller of the Christian Science Publishing Society. He has been in the public practice of Christian Science since 1966. He is currently on extensive tour as a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

His local lecture, entitled "Your Unlimited Opportunities," will endeavor to explain the meaning of living constantly at the point of opportunity. He describes it as "asking the ultimate questions about God and man and the universe and the divine laws that govern the universe."

The lecture is open to the public without charge.

Orthodox

WALNUT CREEK — Great Lent in the Orthodox Church officially began on Monday, March 8. Because St. Michael the Archangel Orthodox Mission does not have a permanent home, we will be joining Holy Trinity Cathedral, Green and Van Ness Streets in San Francisco, for the Pre-sanctified Lenten services on Wednesday evenings at 6 p.m. The services will be followed by a supper and a presentation. The presentations will concern various aspects of Pascha (Easter) and Orthodoxy.

Saturday, March 13, there will be a one day retreat at the St. Eugene's Retreat Center - Hermitage. Divine Liturgy will begin at 10:30 a.m. at the Chapel at Inverness Park, Point Reyes.

St Michael's Orthodox Mission will hold the regular Sunday services at the interim location: 1543 Sunnyside Ave., Walnut Creek. Sunday School begins at 10 a.m. and Divine Liturgy at 10:30. During Lent all Orthodox are urged to go to confession and receive Communion.

Anyone interested in attending any of the services mentioned above please call Rev. Michael Prokurat at 376-1965 or John Vitko, Jr. at 447-6086

Purim

LIVERMORE — Purim is a joyous holiday commemorating the deliverance of the Jewish people back in ancient Persia. The story is complete with a wise hero, beautiful heroine and terrible villain. In the end, the villain gets his just desserts, and the Jewish people are saved.

The story, "The Megila (Scroll) of Esther" (the heroine) is read on the eve of Purim. It is punctuated with loud enthusiastic noises at each mention of Haman's (the villain's) name. Such an enthusiastic service is planned for Temple Beth Emek, Friday, March 12 at 8 p.m.

'So Many Voices' movie at Parkway

DUBLIN — The motion picture "So Many Voices" will be shown at Parkway Baptist Church, Dublin, this Sunday, during the Christian Family hour at 6 p.m.

This film dwells on how television affects your children, how certain music creates tension and promotes immorality, and how the world has made sex an idol. If you're concerned about the spiritual and emotional health of your family, don't miss this film.

Regular church service each Sunday at 11 a.m. with Bible study for all age groups beginning at 9:30. Evening worship service is at 7.

For more information on Parkway Baptist Church activities, call the church office at 828-0359.

One of these crate prizes is yours

★ The Super Grand Prize... a 1976 PINTO Runabout

- ★ 6 12-Day Hawaiian Pacific Far East Lines Cruises for two
- ★ 6 RCA Color TV's
- ★ 18 Weekends for two at the Hyatt Lake Tahoe
- ★ 1,000 AH-000-GAH Horns

At least one of these crate prizes belongs to you. Or maybe two. Or with your crate good luck—three prizes plus the Pinto Runabout. Maybe. Certainly worth racing directly to your nearest Ford Dealer's. It's your crate chance!

Something for nothing!
Nothing to buy. Nothing to sell. Just walk straight up to the Great Crate and pull out your Great Crate key chain. That's your prize for entering. Hang on to it because it's your number. Maybe the winningest number in the Great Crate Sweepstakes...

According to the rules
You must be 18 years or over to enter. You may only enter once. This is a local contest (see, you've really got a crate chance to win big). All prizes will be given away. Sweepstakes closes midnight April 10, 1976. You must go to your participating Ford Dealer's to enter and...

Why the Great Crate?
It's a TV star. You've seen it. The Crate with the Pinto Runabout inside it. Pinto's the frisky little Ford that's got all the value you used to have to buy an import to get. But Pinto's all-American. Without a doubt the 'cratest' car on the road.
